

Children Have to be Carefully Taught

This presentation will introduce the research that identifies how racial bias/racism impacts children's development and learning. The following will be delineated: stages of early childhood racial awareness, characteristics of children's thinking relative to pre-prejudice/bias information, goals of anti-bias education and anti-bias education strategies. Additionally, the role of early childhood educators will be discussed in light of professional Iowa state standards for early childhood education and the competencies for educators/child care providers relevant to responding to the impact of bias/racism and fostering an anti-bias educational approach.
